

Tim Ennis- Director of Grain Marketing, National Farmers

Director of National Farmers Grain Division, Ennis was born and raised on a first generation operation of a National Farmers member family in Wisconsin Dells, Wis.

Earning a B.A. in economics from the University of Chicago in 1970, Ennis began working for National Farmers in 1971. He began his career with National Farmers in the Field Staff Department, concentrating on membership and dues. He began negotiating for members in 1974, in the Specialty Crops Division. He was appointed Director of that division in 1980.

He became Director of Operations for the entire National Farmers grain marketing division in 1986, continuing in that position until 1991. In 2004, he joined National Farmers' marketing program, NForganics, as director of that division. He was appointed Director of Grain in 2009.
